Producer Role Guide

Purpose

The producer ensures that every creative vision is supported by a realistic, organized, and sustainable plan. They manage the operational side of the production — budgets, schedules, communication, and volunteer coordination — allowing the director and cast to focus on ministry and artistry.

Core Responsibilities

- Project Planning - Establish the production calendar, rehearsal schedule, and milestones.
- Resource Management - Track budgets, materials, and technical needs with stewardship and transparency.
- Volunteer Coordination - Ensure each role is filled, equipped, and informed.
- Communication Hub - Serve as the primary link between church leadership, departments, and volunteers.
- Risk & Safety Oversight - Confirm safety checklists, emergency procedures, and compliance with church policies.
- Post-Event Review - Archive documents, collect feedback, and prepare reports for leadership.

Best Practices

- Keep documentation current — schedules, rosters, and budgets.
- Create backup plans for key roles, props, and technical elements.
- Communicate early and often; clarity prevents burnout.
- Support the director's creative vision while safeguarding the team's capacity.
- Model calm under pressure and gratitude in every interaction.
- Treat every logistical task as ministry — service that enables worship.

Communication Rhythm

Area	Frequency	Focus
Leadership Sync	Weekly	Budget, scope, resource updates

Stewardship Principle

Producers manage details not for control, but for care — ensuring that creative ministry is sustainable, safe, and faithful to the church's calling.
